

Mastery.

Team Musashi. A presentation by Zaman, Usman, Umar, Rajib, Nabin and Tamim.

What are the attributes of mastery.

-consistency

-discomfort

-learning

-courage

-Professionalism

Being courageous enough and to have a great enough vision to endlessly pursue something everyday, regardless of the conditions around you. To continually learn, to practice and to self reflect honestly, all in pursuit of becoming better. Mastery is loving yourself enough to pursue the truth within yourself.

The value of an Idea

You're a closer or you're a poser.

- The value of an idea is only worth as much as its ability to be conveyed.

- If you can't communicate effectively, you can neither take from other and neither can they take from you.

- The richest men in the world are salesmen.

You learn or you lose.

- The world is continually changing.

- True mastery is in learning continually. Denzel Washington still goes to acting classes. Why? Because he thinks theres a 0.1% he learns something new.

- If you aren't learning, your skills gain rust,

- Anyone can pursue a hobby, anyone can be a freelancer or agent. But to dominate a field, to master a subject, we must pursue a lifelong objective.

Learn continually - there's always
"one more thing" to learn!

Batman's story is one of being discombobulated by the circumstances of life, he was taught by his father, before he was horrifically murdered that we only fall so that we can learn to be better. Struggle is not an obstacle, it is a catalyst for change. It is a necessary force,
